Honoring Deceased Loved Ones During COVID-19

Funerals During COVID-19

with W. H. LITTLES AND SONS MORTUARIES

We know COVID-19 has created many changes and challenges for families across the world. We also realize the cycle of life continues and may bring about many unanswered questions.

As we are all learning more and more about this virus, we also want to make sure the families we serve are able to honor their loved ones in a safe and memorable way.

Here are a few answers to concerns about funerals during COVID-19 with us.

- W. H. Littles is equipped to handle many types of diseases like COVID-19. Safety measures for our staff and customers is important with every case.
- W. H. Littles currently provides a full range of memorial and burial services during COVID-19.
- With W. H. Littles there is no need to delay funeral services and visitations due to COVID-19. However, some changes to traditional practices will be in place for safety.
- Although COVID-19 is a new disease, the CDC has reported, “There is currently no known risk associated with being in the same room at a funeral service or visitation with the body of a deceased person who had confirmed or suspected COVID-19 after the body has been prepared for viewing.” Still, safety measures will be in place such as mask and social distancing.
- W.H. Littles takes extra precautions to prevent the spread of COVID-19 when planning and directing funeral services as well as visitations. As a public convenience, families have the option of live streaming and video recordings.
- When attending a funeral services with W. H. Littles, mask and social distancing is highly encouraged. We also will adhere to COVID-19 demands of leadership in all places of worship, and any other venues outside of our facilities during the funeral services.
